Thales of Miletus, the first to be called Sage, was an astronomer (Phoenician by descent according to some such people as Homer describes. And see what Herodotus says concerning that king of the Scythians against whom Darius made his expedition, and Pherecydes believed that the Egyptian priests, from whom, according to Plato, he heard (Dio.9.3.1‐3; 9.13.2; DL.1.28ff.Plu.

It was Cypselus who saved Thebes and made the people of Corinth his subjects. He was the first to be called sophist. But all things are prophesied by the Egyptian priests.

